八、阅读理解

A

Nowadays more and more children seem to get lost in a “sea of digital technology”. To be honest, as they use digital technology too much, they are losing their skills to do simple things. They can’t make toys themselves with hands or help mum cook dinner. And worst of all, they seem to be losing interest in communicating with others.

“I have talked with a number of teachers. They care about the rising numbers of young pupils who can play with computers or smart phones, but have few or no skills to make things.” said a teacher, Colin Kinney. “Many pupils can’t communicate with other pupils but their parents are glad to see the skills of their children to use a computer or a smart phone.”

Instead of playing with other children, more and more children are choosing to stay indoors and quietly play on a tablet (平板电脑) on weekends and after school. How can a child grow up to be a very good artist unless he learns how to use a paint brush and develop his painting skill? How can a child learn to make friends as he gets older unless he learns to communicate with others at a young age?

Digital technology can be used for good or bad. We can use a stone to either break a window or build a house. We shouldn’t blame the children. We should help them make right choices (选择). It is certainly necessary for children to know how to use digital technology in today’s world, but what is more important, we should encourage them to develop social abilities (能力), which are good when they grow up.

1. What’s the worst problem in the first passage?

- A. Children can't make things themselves.
B. Children make too many friends online.
C. Children don't want to communicate with others.
D. Children don't like helping mum cook meals at home.
2. According to Colin Kinney, which of the following is TRUE?
A. Teachers don't notice that young pupils have few skills to make things.
B. Many parents are very happy that their kids can use digital technology.
C. Many teachers don't care if young pupils can play computers or tablets.
D. Some parents are worried that their kids use digital technology too much.
3. What does the underlined word "blame" mean in Chinese?
A. 表扬 B. 原谅 C. 评价 D. 责怪
4. The passage is probably a _____.
A. notice B. magazine C. diary D. report
5. What does the writer mainly want to tell us?
A. It's very important for children to have social skills.
B. It's very helpful for children to do some housework.
C. It's necessary for parents to learn to use digital technology.
D. It's difficult for teachers to make right choices for their pupils.

八、阅读理解

Nowadays more and more children seem to get lost in a “sea of digital technology”. To be honest, as they use digital technology too much, they are losing their skills to do simple things. They can't make toys themselves with hands or help mum cook dinner. And worst of all, they seem to be losing interest in communicating with others.

“I have talked with a number of teachers. They care about the rising numbers of young pupils who can play with computers or smart phones, but have few or no skills to make things.” said a teacher, Colin Kinney. “Many pupils can't communicate with other pupils but their parents are glad to see the skills of their children to use a computer or a smart phone.”

Instead of playing with other children, more and more children are choosing to stay indoors and quietly play on a tablet (平板电脑) on weekends and after school. How can a child grow up to be a very good artist unless he learns how to use a paint brush and develop his painting skill? How can a child learn to make friends as he gets older unless he learns to communicate with others at a young age?

Digital technology can be used for good or bad. We can use a stone to either break a window or build a house. We shouldn't blame the children. We should help them make right choices (选择). It is certainly necessary for children to know how to use digital technology in today's world, but what is more important, we should encourage them to develop social abilities (能力), which are good when they grow up.
